Step-By-Step Directions

1. Die cut the oval frame shape from the Apothecary Accents Framelits using the 4 pieces of 3 1/4" x 5 1/2" black card stock. Score the four 2 1/2" x 2 3/8" black card stock piece at 1/4" on the 2 3/8" side. Place one of the 2 1/2" x 2 3/8" pieces on top of the oval framelit shape centering it top to bottom and lining up the non-scored edge with the edge of the framelit shape. Place the smallest Labels Collection framelit on top of both of these pieces and run this through the Big Shot, die cutting a window centered in both pieces.
2. Emboss the oval framelit shapes only using the Lacy Brocade embossing folder.
3. Stamp the Toxic Treats images onto the vellum pieces using Stazon Black and centering each on the vellum. Adhere the vellum pieces to the 2 1/2" x 2 3/8" black card stock pieces centering the images in the window and leaving the 1/4" scored flap uncovered. Trim off the corners of the vellum pieces so that they won't show when you put the whole lantern together.
4. Apply Sticky Strip to the 1/4" scored portion of the black/vellum window pieces and adhere them together to form a square lantern shape with the vellum on the outside of the square. Score the two 1/2" x 3" black card stock pieces at 1/4" from each end. Adhere these together in a criss-cross pattern using a mini glue dot in the center. Fold up the scored ends and apply a small piece of Sticky Strip just to these ends. Snip in just slightly toward the center of the Scallop circle punch in between every two scallops. Sit the tea light in the center and fold the scallops up around it to give it a little “seat.” Adhere this to the center of the criss-cross shape using a Mini Glue Dot forming the candleholder. Adhere the candleholder to the inside of the lantern square centering one of the arms of the candleholder on each panel of the 2 ½” x 2 3/8” black cardstock so that the bottom of the candleholder is level with the bottom of the lantern shape.

5. Adhere the oval framelit shapes on top of the vellum, lining up the windows on the black pieces – you’ll be able to see through the vellum to do this – so that the vellum is sandwiched between the two black pieces. The edges of the oval shapes will bow out slightly when they touch each other on the sides.
6. Use a paper piercer to pierce a small hole in two opposite sides of the lantern just above the window so that you go through both pieces of black card stock. Bend the wire in half and twist a few times to form a loop to hang the lantern. Thread one end of your wire through one of the holes and coil the end. Do this on the other side and coil the ends until the loop is centered inside the lantern and reaches your desired hanging length.
